ALLGEMEINE GOLD- UND SILBERSCHEIDEANSTALT AG ACHIEVES RJC CHAIN OF CUSTODY CERTIFICATION

LONDON - The Responsible Jewellery Council (RJC) today announced that Allgemeine Gold- und Silberscheideanstalt AG, the Germany-based gold refiner, has achieved certification against the new RJC Chain of Custody (CoC) Standard.

“RJC is delighted to congratulate Allgemeine Gold- und Silberscheideanstalt AG on achieving the 6th CoC Certification granted by RJC. CoC Certification provides a mechanism for refiners to demonstrate how they are implementing the OECD Due Diligence Guidance for Responsible Supply Chains. Allgemeine Gold- und Silberscheideanstalt AG's CoC Certification results from a successful verification assessment conducted by UL, an international auditing company accredited by RJC,” says Michael Rae, RJC’s Chief Executive Officer.

“This is another milestone for us. Agosi is the first German refinery to have been granted both the RJC certified membership and, as a next step, the highly regarded Chain of Custody-certification. The RJC and CoC principles correspond perfectly with our ambition to combine commercial success with social responsibility and a commitment to environmental protection. We are proud to set an example as a German supplier on the precious metals markets that offers fine gold of certified origin from conflict-free and ethically responsible sources. This is documented in corresponding paperwork that accompanies each delivery of Agosi CoC conforming material, be it fine gold or semi-finished products made of gold alloys,” says Dietmar Becker, CEO Allgemeine Gold- und Silberscheideanstalt AG.
