RJC Concludes Successful Week of Industry Engagement in India and Accredits Two Indian Audit Firms

LONDON – The Responsible Jewellery Council (RJC) completed a key round of engagement with the Indian industry during a weeklong series of outreach sessions, one-on-one meetings with RJC Members, key industry stakeholders and prospective members. The information sessions, held in Mumbai and Surat, focused on RJC’s ongoing engagement plans in India, as well as the new 2013 Code of Practices (COP) and how it can assist the Indian industry with its new provenance claims and human rights provisions. Combined, over 130 participants attended.

Presented by RJC’s Interim CEO, Catherine Sproule, and Director – Standards Development, Fiona Solomon, the week provided RJC with valuable insight into how it can further contribute to India’s dynamic manufacturing and jewellery sector via the RJC certification program. The RJC seeks to enhance local engagement and Member support, and India is a top priority region for 2014. RJC returns to India in April with an emphasis on additional training on the new COP and further one-on-one meetings. Plans are underway to attend the July IIJS trade fair in Mumbai.

“There were key outcomes from the week spent in Mumbai and Surat. RJC has crystallised plans for an India-RJC engagement Forum, building from a key committee that contributed valuable feedback to the development of the new COP. Also, the information sessions on the new COP allowed RJC to listen and respond to viewpoints from this very key market,” says Sproule.

Representatives from RJC Members Rio Tinto, Rosy Blue, D. Navinchandra, Venus Jewel and C. Dinesh & Co. presented at the seminars and talked about their commitment to RJC and the benefits of RJC certification.

In further welcome news, RJC has accredited two additional India-based audit firms, ISOQAR (India) Pvt. Ltd and Intertek through its India operations. These two firms will be added to the list of RJC Accredited Auditors on the RJC website. RJC continues to work to expand the pool of auditors to service RJC’s growing membership and the demand for certification.

“Intertek India is proud to be accredited by the Responsible Jewellery Council. The audit services we can now provide to RJC members will help them maximize the value of their business and also create a more
