PROVENANCE CLAIMS

At BRUNA, we are committed to using ethical gold and silver for our jewelry. This means that we place great importance on sourcing precious metals from one of the following two sources that are encompassed in our definition of "ethical":

1. Recycled gold and silver supported by appropriate chain of custody documentation. A chain of custody is a documented sequence of custody of a material as it moves along the supply chain. Documentary evidence includes transfer documents, invoices, import/export, and shipping documentation.
  2. Gold that's responsibly sourced from artisanal mining communities, specifically, Fairtrade certified gold, Fairmined certified gold, or gold sourced through The Impact Facility (TIF)
- Should the gold and silver used by any of our suppliers not fall under the two categories outlined above, we'll compensate for any potential negative impacts associated with sourcing these materials.
