Invitation to the Responsible Jewellery Council (RJC) and London Bullion Market Association (LBMA) Industry Briefing:

“Do you know where your gold comes from? RJC Chain of Custody and LBMA Responsible Gold: providing support for supply chain due diligence.”

Supported by IJL

The watch and jewellery supply chain is increasingly being asked: “Do you know where your gold comes from?” Initiatives such as the OECD Due Diligence Guidance and Section 1502 of the USA Dodd-Frank Act are redirecting this question to knowing your gold refiner.

This session will address:

- Why conflict-sensitive sourcing has become important, and the role of refiners
- The LBMA Responsible Gold Guidance: what it means for gold refiners and their customers in the watch and jewellery supply chain
- The RJC Chain-of-Custody Standard: what it means for gold refiners and how the standard addresses both conflict-sensitive sourcing and responsible business practices through the supply chain.
- Harmonisation between industry initiatives.

In addition to the presentations, time will be available for questions and discussion.
