		collection of information from internal system and immediate suppliers about upstream refiners and/or mines, as applicable, was observed, including on origin / source of material. Member defined CAHRAs, had an established process to identify risks and a grievance mechanism. Namely, the Member was working with three main sustainability policies: GCR Code of Ethics and Business Conduct, GCR Human Rights & Due Diligence Procedure and GCR Precious Metal Supply Chain Policy, all available here, as a basis for supplier and customer identification, due diligence, record keeping, retention of transaction documents, as well as reporting of any suspicious transactions. Interview with the assigned Compliance officer elaborated on the supplier due diligence starting with the time a prospective supplier contacts the Member. The first step was to map the supply chain (Tier 1 and beyond as much as possible), based on the information collected through Know Your Counterparty (KYC) and due diligence (DD) via a prequalification questionnaire from existing suppliers and from new supplier or partners prior to starting a business relationship. The information was regularly updated. As part of the KYC process, the Member has conducted screening and background checks and risk assessments to ensure that applicants were not listed on any international official sanction lists or had adverse information about their past conduct. Applicants were classified into low, medium, and high-risk categories, with extensive due diligence required for high-net-worth individuals whose source of funds was unclear. Decisions to enter into business relationships with high-risk customers, such as politically exposed persons, were made at the senior management level. In addition, the Member looked for evidence of human rights due diligence carried out, such as overview of processes and procedures to manage human rights risks or impacts on site, risk assessment documentation for owned units and, if any, sub-contracted units; evidence of social compliance audits carried out for owned units and, if any, subcontracted units; evidence of Corrective Action Plans (CAPs) issued for owned units and, if any, subcontracted units; evidence of supplier participation in relevant industry programmes and initiatives. External databases such as Human Rights Watch Country Reports, U.S. Department of State reports on countries' human rights practices, Rule of Law Index, Freedom House, Children Rights in the Workplace, ITUC Survey, Global Slavery Index were used to identify CAHRAs and salient human rights issues in the supply chain. The Member did not accept materials from certain countries unless there was clear and unequivocal evidence that the materials have been responsibly sourced. The countries from which the Member did not accept materials included: ABC Islands (Aruba, Bonaire, Curaçao), Mali, Afghanistan, Russia, Myanmar, Central African Republic, North Korea, Cuba, Somalia, Democratic Republic of Congo, South Sudan,

		Guinea Bissau, Sudan, Guinea Conakry, Syria, Iran, Venezuela, Iraq, Yemen, and Libya. OECD Step 2: The Member identified and assessed risks, including identification and mapping of red flags. Records were available to support risk assessment. Namely, the Member used both internal data (sourcing countries, commodity lists, audit results, supplier self-assessment or risk assessment, employee survey and statistics, incidents) and external data (Reports from companies, NGOs, government bodies or media, country indices and country reports) to identify and assess risks. Clients and suppliers go through the due diligence process, resulting in risk categorization: low risk, medium risk and high risk and results of this screening were maintained in a database, per risk rating. Records of sampled suppliers were checked and found that the process was duly followed. OECD Step 3: Identified risks were reported to management, as applicable. A risk strategy has been developed and implemented to support management of risks, including any actions taken as per risks/red flags (if applicable). Performance against risk strategy was monitored. Namely, the Member had dedicated procedures to follow for any identified risks as per here and here. This included, where necessary, visits to external suppliers, as well as independent audits to verify if suppliers are compliant with the Member's requirements. As a result of enhanced due diligence, some business partners may be blacklisted entirely, while others are visited to ascertain and verify some of the information and review their risk rating. For 2021, the Member did not identify any high risks or red flags and no supplier disengagement occurred. OECD Step 4: Reasonable & good faith efforts to implement COP7 have been made, monitored, audited, learnt from and improved over time. A summary audit report is published, including conclusions, in collaboration with scheme owner. OECD Step 5: Verification and annual reporting were in place, with required elements shared with stakeholders. Additional public documentation highlighting member's commitment to precious metal responsible sourcing was available (see Sustainability section). Results/Outcomes – The Member has established accessible systems to understand and identify downstream companies and associated risks, assess and manage risks (if red flags are identified). The systems also support transparency, record-keeping, controls, identification of different types of materials (e.g. mined, recycled, grandfathered, as applicable), verification, monitoring and evaluation of improvements and public reporting on an annual basis.
